Reading

● It wasn't the birthday party they had planned.

Jessica and Bert had planned and prepared for their son Alan's birthday last month. Alan had always wanted to have a party in their big yard. Jessica and Bert had spent a lot of time planning the event and getting their yard ready for the party.

On the night before the party, Jessica and Bert felt that they are totally ready for the special day. They had repainted the fences. They had mowed the bushes and decorated the place. They had even taken down the old tree where Alan used to play. They had rented party tables and chairs, and had also requested for balloons and clowns for the children.

However, when they woke up early the next morning, they couldn't believe what had happened. Because of the thunderstorm last night, the tables and chairs had tipped over. The decorations were all wet and the rain hadn't stopped.

Jessica and Bert were very upset, but they quickly decided to do the party indoors. It wasn't the birthday party they had planned, but it was still an amazing day. Everybody had a wonderful time.
